Boy born in jail dies weeks after first birthday

Investigation.

Cornwall police say such cases are automatically looked into; autopsy scheduled

sean.mckibbin@metronews.ca

Cornwall police are investigating the sudden death of a one-year-old boy who was born on the floor of an Ottawa jail cell in September 2012.

In a statement on their website, police said they responded to a Cornwall home shortly after 5 a.m. Sunday for a 13-month-old child without vital signs. The boy was later pronounced dead in hospital.

On Sunday morning the boy's mother, Julie Bilotta — who was forced to give birth to her son inside a jail cell after guards allegedly ignored her pleas for help — wrote on her Facebook page:

"How could this happen to us life will never be the same! We love you Gionni mommy will be with you soon <3."

Bilotta goes by Julie Dakota Garlow on Facebook. She was in jail last year facing drug trafficking and fraud charges. She later pleaded guilty to some of the charges.

Bilotta's lawyer, Lawrence Greenspon, told Metro the boy had suffered respiratory problems "on and off," since birth. On Sept. 27 Bilotta wrote on her Facebook page that Gionni was sick and she hoped he would be healthy for his party. Two days later, on her son's birthday, she wrote about the experience of giving birth in jail.

"One year ago today I went threw one of the most terrifying experiences in my whole life. Threw that I learned how cruel life can be but god doesn't give you anything you can't handle. Me and my son are survivors and I never would of made it threw any of it without Gionni. He is the strongest boy I have ever met and I thank god every day for giving me such an amazing child and amazing family! Thank you all for sharing this very special day with us it means more then you'll ever know happy (first) birthday Gionni Lee Garlow."

Heartbreaking photos of Gionni eating birthday cake, which Bilotta posted to Facebook, seem to indicate he was healthy enough for a party. But on Oct. 6 Bilotta wrote that her son had been sick all night and was having breathing trouble, so she took him to hospital.

Cops investigating sexual assaults

Ottawa police are looking into the possibility of links between a string of unsolved sexual assaults across the city.

On Oct. 7 near Heron Road Transitway, police say a "light-skinned" man dragged a 25-year-old woman into nearby bushes and sexually assaulted her.

There are two other unsolved incidents that occurred on Aug. 5 and June 26, which prompted police to release a composite sketch of a suspect.

The suspect in both incidents is described as having a light brown complexion, a medium build, as measuring between five-foot-nine to five-foot-eleven, and as speaking English with no accent. Anyone with information should call police at 613-236-1222 extension 5944. JOE LOFARO/METRO

600 families host newcomers nationwide in Vancouver, Victoria, Calgary, Halifax, Ottawa

MOLLY AMOLI K. SHINHAT

Some 85 Ottawans threw open their homes to newcomers this Thanksgiving by signing up for the city's inaugural year of Share Thanksgiving.

Founded in Toronto last year, the group brings newcomers and Canadians together to connect over food and conversation.

Antonella Couse, a 51-year-old receptionist at First Air, signed up. Told about the program by her nephew, she invited to dinner Aicha, Joan and Caio, three international students in their twenties from Italy, Brazil and France.

"I got a call after 5 p.m.," Couse said. The dinner was set for 5 p.m. "It was one of the girls saying, 'Don't kill me!'" She had baked a cake to bring for Couse, but it was burnt. She put another in the oven and was calling to say they would be late. Couse said it was no problem and sent her youngest son to pick them up.

Knowing most Canadians are from somewhere else originally, Share Thanksgiving is based on the "deceptively simple idea" that food and conversation can connect people, Madeleine Bluteau, co-city leader, said. Bluteau is an administrative assistant at the Sandy Hill Community Health Centre. Parker Mitchell, who travelled to about a dozen countries where he stayed with families, founded Share Thanksgiving, Bluteau said. Formerly of Engineers Without Borders, Mitchell remembered the warm welcome he received on his travels.

In its first year in Toronto last year, about 100 dinners took place. This year 600 families hosted newcomers nationwide in Vancouver, Victoria, Calgary, Halifax, and Ottawa.

"Yes definitely," Couse said, when asked if she would do it next year. "If I was in a new country, I'd want to be welcomed into someone's home.... They're around the same age as my kids, and it was fascinating to hear about their family's customs, what they're going through."

Sleep-deprived workers get a chance to nap downtown

Promo stunt. If you're feeling tired you aren't alone, survey says

Need a nap after lunch? Until Oct. 18, downtown employees can grab one at the Sleep Pod Hotel on Sparks Street.

Adults in their professional prime — aged 35-64 — typically average “less than six hours’ sleep a night,” according to a new National Sleep Survey sponsored by GlaxoSmithKline. And 92 per cent of women were likely to have a “poor night’s sleep,” compared to 88 per cent of men.

“It’s the hamster in your head,” said Sophie Lamarche, an executive coach who consults with Franklin Covey. It’s no surprise, she added, that women are most likely to be short on shut eye: Although it’s changing, women continue to have the lion’s share of domestic responsibilities.

“People always overlook sleep when they think about health,” Lamarche said. “They focus on food and exercise.”

The telephone survey included 1,002 adults, 18 years and older, almost exactly 50-50 male and female.

The severely sleep deprived

More sleep survey results

- Men (60%) and women (61%) were equally likely to be less productive at work.
- Men (26%) are more likely than women (18%) to be late for work/school.
- Men (13%) are more likely than women (8%) to miss work/school.
- Women (56%) are more likely than men (48%) to feel unmotivated.
- Women (40%) are more likely than men (35%) to be unable to concentrate.

become less efficient, less productive, miss promotions, and may even end up losing their jobs, Lamarche said.

Equipped with a comfy mattress and pillow, the pods, being set up as a part of a promotional stunt to market Breathe Right Strips, offer respite between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

“It’s a way to sensitize people to the impact of lack of sleep,” Lamarche said.

A “pod hotel,” with sleeping pods like these, set up outside Montreal’s St. James United Church on Saint Catherine Street will be on Sparks Street this week for power nappers as part of a promotional stunt for Breathe Right Strips, which is promoting a survey about the importance of getting a good night’s sleep. ## Ottawa Mission feeds more young families

The Ottawa Mission’s chef Ric Watson poses with kitchen volunteer Sijetana Gavric on Monday during a Thanksgiving dinner service put on for low-income Ottawans. MOLLY AMOLI K. SHINHAT/FOR METRO

The Ottawa Mission stepped up to the plate again this Thanksgiving to serve hot meals to people in need. While the number of diners has increased over recent years, Chef Ric Watson says, young families are the largest growing demographic.

“They can’t afford to put a turkey dinner on their table,” Chef Watson said, adding many families “can’t make it from paycheck to paycheck,” and “are not people we would normally see.”

Holiday meals traditionally involve preparing dishes that cost more to make, like a festive roast with seasonal trimmings such as stuffing and sauces, and special desserts such as pies and puddings, said Watson.

While its shelter is exclusively for men, The Mission’s meals are open to everyone, every day. On an average day, staff serve meals to some 1,200 people, said Watson, who has worked at The Mission for 12 years. When he started, that number was about 400.

In 2011, 2,688 meals were served up on Thanksgiving. That number jumped to 2,748 last year.

“We make sure it’s a well-balanced diet for everyone who eats here,” Watson said, noting they have menus for people with celiac disease, vegetarians, dietary restrictions based on religion, and closely follow Canada’s Food Guide. “People leave with a full stomach — they’re not eating anything that they can’t eat or don’t really want.”

“You’ll see a lot of young kids come in with their mother and father. It’s saddening, but it’s nice to be able to provide them with a healthy meal,” Watson said, adding that many also use The Mission’s grocery bag program.

B.C. man thankful for charity drive to get him a new trailer

'A light at the end of the tunnel.' Stephen Chalmers overwhelmed with gratitude, but stresses others at the park need help too

It was a Thanksgiving Stephen Chalmers will never forget — neither the good nor the bad.

Chalmers suffers from multiple mental illnesses and fell into a deep depression after the power was accidentally cut a month ago to his home in the Beladean Motel and Trailer Park in Surrey, B.C.

He had accepted a buyout from the landlord to leave

Stephen Chalmers sits inside his trailer at the Beladean Motel and Trailer Park on Oct. 10. Chalmers and his sister Marilyn Chase are overwhelmed with gratitude over the response to a Metro-assisted campaign to raise $5,000 to buy Chalmers a new trailer. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/METRO the property but discovered afterward that he couldn't because his leaky 1989 trailer is too old and broken down to be accepted at most other trailer parks.

His sister, Marilyn Chase, doesn't have a computer or use the Internet, but with Metro's assistance started a $5,000 fundraising campaign to buy her brother a used but newer trailer. By press time Monday, the campaign had raised $4,660.

"As far as I can understand it seems to be pretty successful, which is really amazing to me, all these people who don't know us from Adam are pitching in. It's wonderful," she said.

"It means that I can sleep at night, because I know that my brother's not going to be stuck there forever and ever."

The search is now on for a trailer dealer or seller who on a used trailer for Chalmers — one that doesn't leak and has functioning propane and water hookups.

Chalmers said because of the campaign he sees "a light at the end of the tunnel" that wasn't there before, but wanted to stress that there are still eight other tenants at the park who are just as scared about their future as he is.

"I'd like to thank everybody that's helping me, but I really need everybody to help them, too," he said, through tears.

Another 'Kenya mall' terror attack averted, cops say

British law-enforcement agencies averted a plot to orchestrate a large-scale terror attack similar to the assault on Kenya's Westgate mall, an official said Monday.

Police were questioning four men in their 20s on suspicion of terrorism after they were detained Sunday in pre-planned, intelligence-led raids.

The official said it was not clear how advanced the planning was but that any attack was not imminent.

Dramatic CCTV footage has emerged of one of the arrests, in which counter-terror police are seen tackling a suspect on the street in an upscale west London neighbourhood.

Elsewhere, police fired special ammunition — aimed at breaching doors or bursting tires — to stop a car near the Tower of London, and arrested two men. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Workers hit by race riot, then cop raid

Russia. Warehouse had been the target of people seeking justice for stabbing death

Russian police on Monday swept through a vegetable warehouse, rounding up over 1,000 migrant workers, checking their documents and loading them onto vans to be investigated for criminal activity.

The raid came the day after demonstrators, angry over the stabbing death of an ethnic Russian man, descended on the warehouse where they believed the killer was working, throwing bottles and trash, smashing windows and turning over cars. Police detained hundreds of rioters.

Men who worked at the warehouse in Biryulyovo were marched outside. Dozens of people gathered at the market nearby to pledge their support to the rioters, venting their anger at the migrants from the predominantly Muslim Caucasus region, whom many Russians accuse of pushing up the crime rate and taking badly needed jobs.

Andrei Galiakberov, spokesman for the Moscow police, described the roundup as part of a "pre-emptive raid" and said that some detainees are being investigated for possible criminal connections.

Police also said that they found a car full of cash and unlicensed arms.

Elvin Khassan, who moved from Azerbaijan to Biryulyovo, faced off with an ethnic Russian man who was waving photos of the suspected killer in his face, shouting, "You are hiding one of your own! Hand him over!"

Most of those in the crowd said they supported the rioters, who they said could be relied on more than the police to protect the neighbourhood.

"They protected us; they are patriots," said Elvira Ab-

Ex-Nazi officer Erich Priebke

PLINIO LEPRI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

No resting place for the wicked

What to do with the body of a Nazi war criminal no one wants?

Rome's mayor, police chief and the pope's right-hand man have all refused to grant former SS captain Erich Priebke a church funeral in the city where he participated in one of the worst massacres in Italy. Now there's the added question of where to bury him, since Rome, his adopted homeland of Argentina and his hometown in Germany won't take him.

Priebke spent nearly 50 years as a fugitive before being extradited to Italy from Argentina in 1995 to stand trial for the 1944 massacre at the Ardeatine Caves outside Rome, in which 335 civilians were killed.

He died Friday at age 100 in the Rome home of his lawyer, where he had been serving his life term under house arrest.

His death has tested the church's capacity for mercy and forgiveness and its need to prevent public scandal. There is a seemingly intractable conflict between respect for the dead and that owed to the victims of the Holocaust.

Obama calls meeting to break deadlock

U.S. President Barack Obama helps bag sandwiches with furloughed federal workers volunteering at a Martha's Table kitchen in Washington, D.C., on Monday. Hopes grew Monday for heading off a U.S. government default and ending a partial government shutdown after optimistic predictions from the often antagonistic congressional leaders at the centre of the talks — Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid for the Democrats and Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell for the Republicans. The two men met twice Monday, their sessions sandwiched around a White House announcement that Obama was calling them and the party leaders in the House for the second time in less than a week to discuss the economy-threatening crises. Accountability on the African continent did not have a good 48 hours. On Sunday, the African Union said an international court should delay its trial of Kenya's president. Thai authorities have arrested a bar owner in connection with a lewd sex show mentioned in racy tweets by pop star Rihanna during her recent trip to Thailand, officials said Monday, two weeks after an Instagram photo of Rihanna with a protected primate led to the arrest of two other men.

Officials on the island of Phuket, 680 kilometres south of Bangkok, said Monday the bar owner faced charges of obscenity and operating an entertainment venue without a permit. Local district chief Weera Kerdsumongkon said the man was arrested Saturday as part of a crackdown on shows featuring naked dancers. ## Nobel. Three Americans share economics prize

Three Americans won the Nobel prize for economics on Monday for developing methods to study trends in stock, bond and house prices — work that has changed the way people invest.

Eugene Fama showed in the 1960s how hard it is to predict markets in the short run, while Robert Shiller two decades later showed how it can be done in the long run. Lars Peter Hansen developed a statistical method to test theories of asset pricing.

For their separate research, the three economists shared the $1.2-million prize — the last of this year's Nobel awards to be announced.

"Their methods have shaped subsequent research in the field," the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences said.

Taylor. Former president fears transfer to U.K. jail

Former Liberian President Charles Taylor enjoys playing tennis with fellow inmates in The Hague and is worried about his personal safety once he is transferred to Britain to serve out his sentence for war crimes and crimes against humanity, according to new documents released by his lawyers.

Taylor has been on good behaviour since his transfer to The Hague seven years ago, though he has spoken his mind to prison officials to object to changes in his living conditions, according to the documents. He also has a reputation for paying "particular attention to his deportment and appearance."

Taylor, 65, was arrested and transferred to The Hague in 2006. He received a 50-year sentence last year for sponsoring atrocities committed by the Revolutionary United Front rebels in Sierra Leone. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Call and response. HTC follows Apple's lead with new fingerprint sensor

At your neighbourhood coffee shop, you can order your beverage in small, medium or large. Now, you can do that with phones, too.

HTC Corp. is introducing a larger version of its popular HTC One phone, becoming the latest phone maker to offer its flagship device in three sizes — and, of course, three prices.

The new HTC One Max has one feature unavailable on the smaller models: a fingerprint identification sensor similar to that on Apple's new iPhone 5S. It's an optional way to unlock a phone without using a four-digit passcode. Unlike Apple's version, however, the Max can be programmed to automatically open one of three favourite apps, depending on which finger is used.

HTC spokesman Tom Harlin said the company designed the Max with a fingerprint sensor to make the larger device easier to operate with one hand. Engineers also moved

Canada looks to fill skilled labour gaps

Touchy topic. While employers recruit workers from Ireland, debate rages at home on how to fix the tradespeople shortage

The current shortage of skilled tradespeople in Western Canada is so dire that the B.C. Construction Association is returning to Ireland this month to hire 600 people, said the group's vice-president.

In fact, even if one-in-five students graduating from high school in B.C. during the next three years were to pursue a trade, there still wouldn't be enough workers to fill shortages in the province's construction industry, said Abigail Fulton.

Not everybody agrees with the recruitment drive, especially the province's labour leaders who argue employers can find skilled, unionized Canadian workers to fill immediate, vacant positions.

Yet, a consensus is developing that there will be a shortage of skilled workers in the coming decade, as proponents of the liquefied-natural-gas industry, hydro-electric projects and oil and gas pipelines push their proposals forward.

"There's lots of evidence to suggest we're not doing enough to train construction workers in skilled trades in British Columbia, and if even half these projects come through we're going to have a crisis unless we start now to deal with the problem," said Jim Sinclair, president of the BC Federation of Labour.

The provincial government's statistics indicate there will be more than one-million job openings over the next decade, and more than 153,000 of those will be among trades, transport, equipment operators and related occupations.

Retirements will be responsible for two-thirds of the vacancies, and new economic growth will be behind the remaining third, states the British Columbia Labour Market Outlook 2010-2020.

In the B.C. construction industry, about 30,500 jobs were expected to go unfilled by 2012, according to the association's own statistics.

Ford Motor Co. and the University of Michigan are opening a new battery research and manufacturing lab that they hope will speed the development of batteries for electric and hybrid cars.

THE CHEEKY SIDE OF SCIENCE

This week I learned something that is going to radically change the way you pose for photos. Are you ready for it? Make sure to work your angles ladies and gentlemen because the left side of your face is actually more attractive than the right.

While each one of us believes that we're a unique snowflake with different flattering (or not so flattering) facial features, research shows that we actually all look our best from a specific angle. A 2012 study published in the Experimental Brain Research science journal found that men and women perceive and rate the left side of the face to be more pleasant and visually appealing than the right. Now before you develop a complex about your hideous right cheek, I'll let you in on the science behind this quirky fact.

SHE SAYS
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca

The left side of the face is more emotive, which means we express our emotions more intensely on the left compared to the right. Researchers argue that this facial asymmetry is theoretically the result of a left brain/right brain divide. The right side of the brain regulates our emotional thought and expression; and since each hemisphere controls the opposite side of the body, our emotions register more powerfully on one half of our face.

Still with me?

Essentially, the emotional right brain causes the left side of your face to appear more easy-to-read and consequently, more attractive. Unless of course that powerful emotion leaves you with a furrowed brow and red-eyes while sobbing, in which case you better hope no one is sitting to your left.

If you've ever sat for a graduation portrait or a professional headshot you'll recall the painful process of tilting your chin ever so slightly up and to the right, to achieve the most photogenic angle. And a quick survey of Instagram photos reveals that even the most casual snap-happy users have caught on to our preference for left-sided selfies.

Even before the days of smartphone cameras (or any type of cameras for that matter) artists preferred to paint portraits this way as subjects who were painted in left-cheek poses were perceived to be more open and creative and yes, more beautiful. The famous Mona Lisa of course has her best cheek forward.

So next time you find yourself in front of a camera and insist that you be photographed from your "good side," you'll actually have some science to back up those high-maintenance demands.

Insect's last supper discovered ... 46 million years later

In a steamy tropical forest 46 million years ago, a prehistoric mosquito bit a critter, drew blood and was blown into a lake in what is now the northwestern state of Montana. Belly full, she died and sank.

Flash forward to the present. Researchers found the minuscule female insect fossilized in a paper-thin piece of shale — which had sat in someone's basement for 25 to 30 years with other rocks — and concluded it still contains its last supper. A study in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Science reports a first for biology: A blood meal found intact in a fossil.

Unfortunately for would-be dinosaur cloners, the mosquito flew long after dinosaurs went extinct, and its meal was probably blood from a dino descendant, a bird.

Scientists have long thought that DNA from other critters couldn't survive in insect fossils, said the study's lead author. So this is more of a look-what-we-found, that starts out like early chapters of the sci-fi thriller.

In mounting this tribute to the Japanese movie monsters he has adored since childhood — dino-sized Godzilla, of course, but also the likes of multi-headed Ghidorah, spiky Rodan and winged Mothra — del Toro and his team have laboured to make a complete sensory experience. Through the welcome presence of Rinko Kikuchi, del Toro has also taken pains to put an intelligent and resourceful woman into his testosterone-rich scenario. ## The X-Files. Still looking for the truth, 20 years on

After 20 years, it’s possible for the details of a relationship to get fuzzy.

Just ask David Duchovny and Gillian Anderson, who first premiered their roles as FBI agents Fox Mulder and Dana Scully on The X-Files two decades ago. The series aired nine seasons and resulted in two feature films.

While the two were unsure where they left their relationship in the show and films, the 53-year-old Duchovny and 45-year-old Anderson both said they’re open to making a third X-Files movie.

The actors got together Saturday to mark the 20th anniversary of the series’ premiere. They participated in a panel discussion for fans at The Paley Center for Media in New York.

When asked where their characters left off, the two weren’t completely clear on the specifics.

“Well they (Mulder and Scully) were married the last movie,” Duchovny said, referring to 2008’s The X-Files: I Want to Believe.

“Were we actually married?” Anderson asked.

“I believe so. That was my impression,” he responded.

Their characters did become romantically involved in the TV series and were a couple during the 2008 movie. However, it was not clear whether they were married.

Both actors are clear,

Tom Hanks never misses the boat — even when it stinks

Captain Phillips.

Actor endured some cramped and smelly situations filming in an enclosed lifeboat

Metro World News in Hollywood

Tom Hanks has faced plenty of acting challenges over the course of his career, but the tiny, enclosed lifeboat used in Captain Phillips definitely stands out for him.

"I'm not a particularly claustrophobic person, but it was a very small space," he says. "Environmentally, it does a lot of the work for you. It's a very uncomfortable space. It smells horrible. The air is bad. It's hot. And you are right on top of each other. There's a lot of places to bonk our head and crack your knee. We all did that. Everybody had all sorts of various scars."

Hanks stars in the film as the titular Captain Phillips, whose cargo ship was famously hijacked by Somali pirates in 2009, and he insists those less-than-ideal working conditions are actually a huge help. "(Director) Paul (Greengrass) sets up an environment that is very realistic, and I can't imagine doing it any other way," Hanks says.

"There's ways that may have been more pleasant but for everything we needed to go through as actors, that tiny, hot, cramped place with only two little windows on it was a great advantage for us."

The film's crew did try their best to make the cramped environment at least a little more tolerable, but to no avail.

"At one point, they built rubber seats for some of the fight scenes," Hanks remembers, but "literally the rubber seats flapped around. So, we said, 'Guys, we don't think rubber seats are going to work.' So they took those out. We had a little bit of matting on the steel deck of the floor. But, by and large, it's a tiny space and it got pretty physical in there sometimes. We all got nicks and bruises."

But really — and Hanks can't stress this enough — the smell in the replica lifeboat was

Captain Phillips opened on Thanksgiving weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Playing the hero

"I'm just a guy who's got a pretty good gig pretending to be other people."

Tom Hanks reflecting on his past roles truly terrible.

"It stank horribly. It was stuffy and small," he says.

"But the actual lifeboat smells even worse because it reeks of diesel fumes, and we had some vomit in there at some point. That's always fun. It was really filthy by the time we got out of there."

While Hanks has racked up plenty of heroic roles — with many based on true stories — he regrets to report that very little of that heroism has rubbed off.

"I'm just a guy who's got a pretty good gig pretending to be other people," he says.

"Hero" is almost like a branded term now. It's banded about all the time. People get labelled it left and right. In the end, heroes are ones who voluntarily walk into the unknown and try to do the right thing. It's all relative. Everybody has variations of it. Sometimes it's death-defying and sometimes it's just living up to one's responsibility."

But then, how can Hanks get away with thinking of himself as a hero when even the guy he's playing this time out won't accept the label.

"Richard Phillips doesn't view himself a hero. He was a guy who sat there and waited for the heroes to show up, which is different," Hanks says.

"We all have times in our lives where we can either be a hero, a villain or a coward and I just hope that I'm a coward as little as possible, and hopefully never a villain and on the occasions when I have to be, I would hope to be able to do the heroic thing, but I've never been tested in any way, shape or form — other than facing down members of the fourth estate."

Bieber plays tough guy behind his security

Justin Bieber can't seem to keep himself out of trouble. The Canadian pop star reportedly started a fight in a nightclub in Seoul, South Korea, by sucker-punching Alex Madden, the tour manager of DJ Michael Woods, according to E! News. "Story is (Bieber) and his army of heavy security muscled into the booth halfway through my set in South Korea demanding hip-hop," Woods posted to Twitter following the altercation. "So when I told (Bieber) to f--- off and put some clothes on he took a cheap shot at my tour manager and fled behind a wall of security." Witnesses report seeing a shirtless Bieber acting "aggressive" with Woods and Madden before ordering one of his security guards to slap Madden. When the guard refused to obey, Bieber reportedly punched Madden in the face and quickly fled behind his bodyguards.

Half Off: Live healthy as a default

Six weeks ago we introduced Metro Winnipeg editor Elisha Dacey, who has teamed up with fitness professional Jordan Ciecwa and registered nutritionist Theresa Albert. Dacey wants to lose half of her body weight and has been writing about it in her online blog, Half Off (metronews.ca/half-off).

It's been a tough couple of weeks for Dacey — moving and getting settled in a new house, gallbladder surgery in September — so you won't be surprised to learn that her weight's been roller coastering (she gained and then lost several pounds over a few weeks). The good news: Dacey is back on track and focusing on her weight loss goal.

"I'm getting there!" she says.

Coaches Ciecwa and Albert understand it's challenging when life throws a curve ball, but point out that making healthy living a habit makes it way easier to manage.

"Learning to maintain healthy habits through stressful times is critical to long-term weight loss and maintenance — and to managing stress and feeling good every day," said Ciecwa.

Many dieters give in to stress.

"But you only get to do this when you are healthy and at a goal weight, and not before. If every stressful week lands you in that mindset, you will never get there," says Albert.

Interview. Hilaria Baldwin speaks to Metro about her new fitness DVD and how she lost weight after having her daughter

life@metronews.ca

As she launches her new Prenatal Yoga DVD, Fit Mommy-To-Be Hilaria Baldwin talks to us about her shrinking tummy and post-baby runs.

Many women assume you need to wait at least six weeks after giving birth before they start exercising again. You waited, what, two weeks?

Fitness is something I've done ever since I could walk — I exercised almost every single day of my pregnancy. I walked, did yoga, ballet barre and up until the fifth month, jogged. I wanted to keep circulation in my body and never got swollen feet, ankles or legs. I obviously gained weight, but nothing extreme. There was some fat — as there should be — but I ate well.

What kind of yoga were you doing?

Think about what's going to prepare your body for delivery: you need a strong pelvic floor and you want the baby to travel further downwards. I did a lot of squatting, open

Hilaria Baldwin lets moms-to-be in on some fitness secrets. CONTRIBUTED twists and hip openers — helping everything release and go down.

Were you on some special knocked-up diet?

It's a diet, but it's not dieting. I ate the stuff I was eating before, just more quantity. So a lot of healthy whole grains, because folic acid is great for the baby's brain development, vegetables, a lot of almonds and walnuts and I added fish to my diet — I'm normally a vegan. I wasn't chowing down on doughnuts. A lot of people were like, 'This is your time to eat sugar!' I didn't want to do that. It wasn't healthy for me or for my baby. It's not a vanity contest.

What, so no cravings?

I think of cravings as, 'I must have this or I'm going to kill somebody.' I never had that. At the beginning I really wanted pineapple and citrus because I was nauseous. It was, 'What can I eat that's not going to make me sick?' And I was a happy pregnant person.

You gave birth and two weeks later, your stomach was pretty much flat! I saw a picture on Twitter.

It's the most bizarre thing. My husband (who has a cameo in the video) and I would laugh because every day we'd wake up and it had shrunk — it was literally going down day by day. At first I was like, 'Oh my God, it's going to be six months and I'm still going to look pregnant!' A lot of it is breast feeding — this is something I didn't know: it burns a lot of calories.

Up to 500 a day, I think

That's what I heard. It stimulates contractions in your uterus that help it return to its normal size. If I'm frank with you, it was the most painful part of my entire pregnancy. But at the same time, I'm looking down at my baby and she's so cute and she's starving. But I enjoy it now.

What advice would you give those new moms who are reluctant to exercise?

If you go little by little, you're always in control; you're not going to get hurt. Be smart, but don't be afraid. Your body is still your body. In the hospital, I started walking up and down the corridors, stretching my ankles and promoting circulation in my arms and legs. The day I got home, my husband and I went for a walk. I was surprised by how tired I was. ... It's hard! You've lost a tremendous amount of blood and you're light headed, but everyday I just felt better and better to the point where I had the guts to do more. I started by giving myself full, very slow yoga classes and by the two-week mark I went to a ballet barre class. After three weeks I went for a jog. My daughter was born five weeks ago today and at this point, I'm doing everything. Did I feel as strong as before? No. But my body told me I was OK and I could go.

Tip #1

"For a relaxing head massage plus scalp and hair treatment, combine a few tablespoons of almond or grape-seed oil with a few drops of lavender and peppermint essential oils. Massage the mixture into scalp in a firm, circular motion. Pull hands through hair to distribute the rest."

Tip #2

"For dry winter skin, mix a 1/2 cup olive oil with a 1/4 cup brown sugar. Gently rub the mixture onto face and legs, concentrating on the extra-dry parts. Then step into a hot shower and let the steam open up your pores for about five minutes, then rinse. It leaves skin silky smooth."

Tip #3

"Coconut oil is a natural hair conditioning treatment. Work it into damp hair at night, then rinse in the morning. Follow up with your usual shampoo and conditioner. It's super-moisturizing and great for sun-bleached hair."

Tip #4

"Use a lemon to scrub under your nails when washing your hands. This will help clean your hands and will also whiten the nails so they look and feel better."

Tip #5

"Deep clean your face once or twice a month by steaming it over a mint- or camomile-infused pot of hot water. Drape a towel over your head and let the steam do its magic."

Tip #6

"To revive dull hair, once a month wash your hair in a mixture of two parts shampoo and one part baking soda. This removes hair-product buildup and leaves hair shiny."

Anal glands and wood pulp

Trick or treat.

Halloween candy can have some terrifying ingredients. Here are five to watch out for

ANDREA PARK
Metro World News

Halloween is right around the corner, but it's not just the costumes that are scary. Halloween candy can be full of frightening ingredients that may have long-term consequences for your children's health.

These ingredients are derived from anything ranging from beavers' anal secretions to wood pulp. Vani Hari, food activist and blogger, told Metro to be careful when letting your kids dig into their Halloween loot. Instead of focusing on the nutrition facts, look closely at the ingredients label for the following red flags.

1. Trans fat

Watch out for trans fat in candy and don't be fooled if the packaging boasts, "Zero grams trans fat!" Hari said that if the candy has less than 0.5 grams trans fat, the company is allowed to write zero grams trans fat on the label. But even in such small quantities, Hari said trans fat can be harmful. "Even a small amount of partially hydrogenated oil is linked to heart disease," said Hari. "It hits the arteries hard."

2. Food colouring

Yellow 5, Yellow 6, Blue 1,

Blue 2 and Red 40 are all common ingredients in candies like gummy bears, Sour Patch Kids, Twizzlers and Skittles. The Center for Science in the Public Interest in the U.S. released a study linking these additives to hyperactivity, cancer and allergies.

3. High fructose corn syrup

High fructose corn syrup is the most refined sugar available, and Hari pointed out that it is also genetically engineered. She added that the long-term risks of GMOs are still very much unknown.

4. Vanillin

Vanillin is made from wood pulp that is oxidized in a lab — and may be carcinogenic.

5. Natural flavours

"These can be anything under the sun that comes from nature, including beavers' anal glands," said Hari. Flavour manufacturers are not required to disclose what makes up these "natural flavors."

Unfortunately, most common brand name Halloween candies have at least one of the above ingredients. Hari said the lesser evil is plain chocolate, but brands like Endangered Species, Yummy Earth, Justin's and Unreal Candy offer tasty, sweet alternative options.

Pear it up

Fall harvest is the sweetest time of the year and nothing is sweeter than a fresh pear.

The skins of pears contain three to four times as much phytonutrients as the flesh, but go ahead, eat the whole thing.

Here are a few savoury ways to work all that goodness into yum beyond the usual sweet snack:

• Toss whole, cored but unpeeled pears into butternut squash soup.

• Halve, core and grill pears. Top with blue cheese and pecans and place atop a bed of greens.

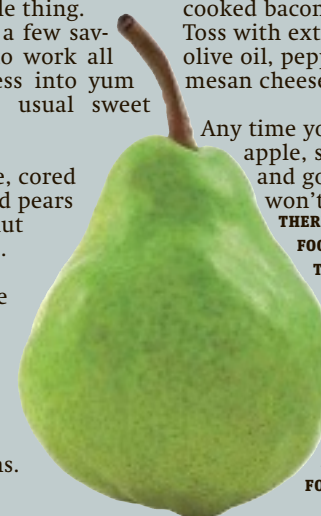

• Mash a very ripe pear in a blender with 1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil, 2 tbsp apple cider vinegar plus 1 tsp hot mustard. Use this as a salad dressing or fish drizzle.

• Add a couple of pears, skin on, to roasted root vegetables. They will soften and sweeten the dish.

• Chop pears into cooked whole grain pasta with cooked bacon or pancetta. Toss with extra virgin olive oil, pepper and parmesan cheese.

Any time you think apple, stretch a bit and go pear. You won't regret it.

Meditative moments.

The author of Walk Like a Buddha describes how a sense of being present can improve your relationships, social life and work

MAJA LUNDAGER PEDERSEN

Metro World News in New York City

Take a posture that's dignified but relaxed: Sit up straight, and feel grounded as you sense your weight pressing into the floor.

Now connect with your breath. Tune into the rhythmic cycle of your breathing and let that breath centre you in the present moment. When you get distracted, say "thinking" to yourself and come back to the breath. You are now ready to start walking like a Buddha.

Lodro Rinzler, the author of a new book called Walk Like a Buddha, has been practising Buddhism since he was 11, and says his book is a compilation of questions people have asked him about his faith.

"The Buddha walks with a sense of being present with what is," Rinzler says. "And that's what the book communicates. How much can we show up and manifest and be there for our life? Even when our boss is yelling at us, even when we are making love, even when we are out with friends on a Friday night."

The questions revolve around five points: How to get a meditation practice going, and how to apply that practice to your romantic life, your social activities, your charitable endeavours and your

Author Lodro Rinzler says if you start taking even 10 minutes to meditate, you'll notice a gradual change in yourself. ISTOCK work. Rinzler said he looked for "common themes" when choosing which questions to feature.

One statement the author was particularly struck by was, "I don't feel worthy of being loved." He says that based on his experience, that feeling most often originates with something underlying — that the person has been told he or she is not good enough, smart enough, pretty enough and so on. Rinzler feels that it's a general issue in North America, but that meditation can help.

"We all possess the same seed for waking up, becoming in mind like the Buddha. He was not so special. We could do that too. We could have faith in a basic goodness or a basic worthiness," Rinzler says.

The author thinks it's worth a try to see if meditation can change something for you. If it doesn't, though, that's OK too.

"More often than not, if you actually do sit down (and take) even just 10 minutes to meditate, you start to notice a gradual change in yourself," he says.

"You start to notice that you are being more present when you are having a conversation with someone. You are less reactive. And that feels liberating."

It helped him a lot, especially when his father became ill. Through meditation he realized that the most powerful thing he could do was to just be present for his father instead of constantly trying to talk to all the doctors and fix all situations.

"The question is, do we always have to try to manipulate and control our situation? And the answer is no."

Electronic outages such as an Internet shutdown could wreak havoc on financial transactions, which is why it's important to keep a hard-copy backup of important information. iStock

Mad at Rogers? Here's what the cell outage can teach us

Blackout blues. Getting cash, paying bills and trading stocks can all be interrupted when electronic systems fail

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths
money@metronews.ca

Oct. 9, 2013 will go down as the day the world went dark — at least for Rogers wireless customers. OK, maybe that's a bit melodramatic. After all, what are a few hours without cell service?

But as my mother would say darkly, "It's the thin edge of the wedge."

Take the Rogers outage as a warning that electronic systems, from ATMs to email, can fail. And when they do, the repercussions are annoying at the very least, but in some cases, they're potentially significant.

An Internet shutdown could delay bill payments, triggering penalties or interest charges. Without e-banking, you might not be able to complete a time-sensitive transfer of funds.

And what would happen to last-minute types who couldn't make an RRSP contribution in time?

I kissed thousands of dollars goodbye during the stock market Flash Crash of 2010 when the Dow Jones plummeted about 1,000 points.

I was in Washington, D.C., and dashed to my computer to buy shares of favourites such as Johnson & Johnson, but couldn't remember my trading password. Gmail had seized up, so I couldn't get into Drive, where the information was stored in encrypted form.

Down the drain

I kissed thousands of dollars goodbye during the stock market Flash Crash of 2010, when the Dow Jones plummeted about 1,000 points.

Then, of course, there was the famous blackout of 2003 when the simplest activities from getting cash to gas were impossible. So a word to the wise — be prepared.

Back up critical numbers

Roadside assistance and other important numbers should be in written form and carried with you.

Schedule payments

Have a hard-copy schedule of bills due, phone contacts and personal ID information.

Keep a cache of cash

Have enough for a household to manage for about a week, including gas and groceries.

Back up personal info

Cloud computing makes it easy to relegate data to the cyber sphere. Ensure there's a hard copy available.

Create a backup plan

The day after the Rogers outage, a parent told me that his nine-year-old son was panicked when no one picked him up after hockey practice. Because his cellphone wasn't working he couldn't contact anyone.

Also, he had no cash, no idea how to use a pay phone or how to ask for help. Drill children on what to do in case of a cyber crash. It might be as important these days as a fire drill.

Red Wings' Monster scares up win in place of Howard

NHL. Gustavsson stops 28 shots in season debut to beat Bruins 3-2

Jonas Gustavsson didn't have a lot of time to plan for his first action of the season.

Gustavsson didn't find out until nearly game time that Detroit's No. 1 goaltender Jimmy Howard was going to be sidelined with a catching-hand injury. Then the backup stopped 28 shots and led the Red Wings to a 3-2 win over the Boston Bruins on Monday afternoon.

"Maybe 15, 20 minutes before the game started," Gustavsson said, sitting at his locker taking his equipment off in a nearly empty dressing room following the win. "It felt good. I was excited to play. It's always fun to go out and have your first game, especially when we have a chance to win."

And the Red Wings (4-2) had to hang on right until the last second to get their second straight victory.

Milan Lucic's 100th career goal sliced it to 3-2 with 1:20 to play. With Bruins net-minder Tuukka Rask pulled for an extra skater, Boston

Howard's hand injury

had the puck in Detroit's zone for nearly all of the final 80 seconds.

Stephen Weiss and Daniel Cleary scored second-period goals for the Wings. Henrik Zetterberg had the other score.

Loui Eriksson had Boston's other goal. The Bruins had a two-man power-play advantage for nearly two minutes early in the third period, but couldn't mount a comeback.

"It looks like we're feeling the pressure of not scoring goals," Boston coach Claude Julien said. "Our goal-scoring confidence is not where we need it to be and we've got to get that straightened out."

Rask made 24 saves for Boston (3-2).

Blue Bombers keep hope alive

The odds still weigh heavily against them, but the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' playoff hopes are not dead yet.

Max Hall picked up his first CFL win as a starting quarterback and Will Ford caught a touchdown pass and ran in another as the Bombers staved off elimination with a 34-27 victory over the Montreal Alou-ettes on Monday afternoon.

Winnipeg's second win in Montreal in 2013 gave them the three-game season series between the clubs by a 2-1 margin, but they will need to win their final three regular-season games and have the Alouettes lose their last three to grab the final East Division playoff spot.

"So you're telling me there's a chance, right?" said Hall. "So we've just got to keep playing. All we can control is winning next week (at home Saturday against Toronto) and, if we can do that, we'll still have a chance."

Clarence Denmark and backup quarterback Jason Bolus also had TDs for Winnipeg.

The World Anti-Doping Agency's probe follows data the former executive director of the Jamaica Anti-Doping Commission revealed to the Caribbean's oldest newspaper indicating a near complete breakdown in JADCO's out-of-competition testing from January 2012 to the July opening of the Olympics.

Verlander looks to tip the scales after weekend split

MLB playoffs. Red Sox escape with comeback win Sunday to tie series after conceding 32 strikeouts to Tigers

The last time Justin Verlander took the mound, his team's season was on the line.

The stakes won't be quite that high for his next start, but the Detroit Tigers could certainly use another brilliant performance from their star right-hander after blowing a chance to take control of the AL championship series.

Detroit wasted a five-run lead Sunday night in Game 2, allowing the Boston Red Sox to even the series with a 6-5 victory. David Ortiz's tying grand slam in the eighth inning snapped the Red Sox out of a hitting funk, and if Boston goes on to win the pennant, there may be little doubt about the turning point in this series.

Verlander's job is to steady the defending AL champion

Tigers.

"Obviously that was a tough one," Verlander said. "At the same time you know this series is going to be a dogfight ..."

The Tigers looked like they were ready to roll through the series after they won the opener and took a 5-0 lead in Game 2. Anibal Sanchez held Boston hitless for six innings on Saturday, and Max Scherzer allowed a run and two hits in seven innings Sunday.

Boston trailed 5-1 in the eighth in Game 2 before a remarkable rally against four relievers. Ortiz tied it with a two-out grand slam.

"I made a mistake that I take full responsibility for," Tigers manager Jim Leyland said. "I should have just reminded him that we didn't want Ortiz to really beat us. He tried to make a great pitch. He tried to get it low and away out of the strike zone, but he didn't get it there."

Boston managed to win one of two at home despite striking out 32 times — eight more than the previous record for the first two games of an LCS, set by the Dodgers a day earlier. The Red Sox are hopeful their bats will come around, starting against Verlander in Game 3 at Comerica Park on Tuesday.

Post-season comebacks

- 1929. Tigers fans can take solace in the fact that Detroit's meltdown was nothing compared to what happened in the 1929 World Series. The Chicago Cubs led 8-0 in Game 4 before Philadelphia scored 10 runs in the bottom of the seventh. The Athletics won 10-8 and closed out the series a game later.
- 1992. In Game 7 of the NLCS, Atlanta trailed Pittsburgh 2-0 in the 9th before winning the pennant. The Pirates were up by a run with two out when Francisco Cabrera — who had only 11 plate appearances during the season — hit a two-run single. The winning run was scored by slow-footed Sid Bream.
- 1993. No lead seemed safe against the 1993 Blue Jays, thanks to an offence that included Rickey Henderson, Roberto Alomar, Paul Molitor, Joe Carter and John Olerud. The Jays wiped out a five-run deficit in the 8th of Game 4 of the World Series, beating Philadelphia 15-14.

Sao Paulo riots

Brazil soccer fans rip apart World Cup stadium

Another wave of fan violence hit Brazil over the weekend, with seats destroyed at a World Cup stadium in Fortaleza and dozens of supporters detained after clashes in Sao Paulo.

World Cup organizers on Monday said that more than 80 seats were destroyed at the Arena Castelão on Sunday by Fortaleza fans upset with the team missing out on promotion to the second division. A day earlier, more than 30 seats were damaged by fans of second-division club Ceara following a disappointing draw at the venue. The stadium will host six matches in next year's World Cup.

Police also confronted fan groups inside two other stadiums, including where Brazilian league leader Cruzeiro played on Sunday.

Several teams have been punished by Brazil's sports tribunal this year because of fan violence, and more penalties are expected after the weekend.

Canadian soccer. Veteran coach Floro to change the course of national team

Far from home, Canadian soccer is getting a reboot under Benito Floro.

Long, demanding classroom sessions. Detailed video reviews.

"One camp is equivalent to three months of club football," said veteran midfielder Julian de Guzman, who captained Canada last time out.

Floro, 61, brings with him a wealth of experience, having managed clubs from Real Madrid in Spain to Monterrey in Mexico. He's trying to instill that knowledge in a Canadian squad that has seen little success of late.

Floro says he needs a lot more time with his Canadian talent, especially since a lot of the young Canadians in MLS are not starting.

"We need a lot of camps," he said in a media conference call Monday.

Floro's teachings also take time to absorb.

"The experience that we're going through with Benito is kind of a culture shock right now," said De Guzman.

"It's a new kind of mentality and culture to comprehend," he added.

De Guzman says it reminds him of when he first went to play in Spain at the age of 24 after playing in Germany.

"It was night and day," he said. "So it's going to take time for the Canadian national team and Canadians to understand where he's coming from."

The veteran Spanish coach will see his team in action Tuesday when Canada, ranked No. 106 in the world, takes on No. 53 Australia at Craven Cottage, the west London home to Fulham.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Some of the things you have to do today may seem dull but there are ways to make them more interesting. There is no such thing as a boring job. It's as exciting as you make it.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

There is a genuine chance that one of your most cherished dreams will come true by the end of the week. Be super positive about it and don't listen to those who tell you not to get your hopes too high.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You will find it easier to understand why some people act the way they do but you won't find it easier to forgive them. You demand certain standards so others need to shape up or ship out.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You may have to make a sacrifice today but it will be worth it. Do what others expect of you and, if possible, with a smile on your face. Make life easy for others and for yourself.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Life may be a serious business but you don't have to be a grouch about it. The planets urge you to focus on the funny side of whatever annoying situation you find yourself in.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Mars, planet of energy, moves into your sign today, so you will be pushing yourself even harder than you usually do. That's great but be warned that if you try to do too much too soon, it could all go wrong.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Why are you looking over your shoulder? Most likely it's the influence of Mars in the most sensitive area of your chart. Ignore it and go about your business.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You can expect amazing times in the days and weeks ahead. You may not want to do anything specific yet but start making plans. Get your friends involved. The more you share, the more you will succeed.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The movement of Mars across the most ambitious angle of your chart today will help you to believe that all things are possible. However, you must have a clear vision of what it is you want to achieve.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

What currently seems difficult is about to come easy. It may even appear to happen as if by magic. The more positive an attitude you adopt, the more fantastic the results will be.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

It's not like you to fear what you don't understand but that seems to be the case right now. How do you overcome it? By finding out as much about it as you possibly can.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

As Mars moves into your opposite sign, you will find some people rub you the wrong way and it could lead to a few bad words between you. Even a Pisces gets snappish once in a while. SALLY BROMPTON

Inspired by Real Collector Stories*

October 1, 2013

With our schedules, vacation time is precious. Whenever we get the chance to travel, our American Express Reserve Credit Card makes the trip that much better. Collecting AIR MILES reward miles is simple - we use our Reserve Card when we shop! Then, we show our AIR MILES Card when we buy groceries at Metro and when we fuel up at Shell to collect even more AIR MILES.

Before we knew it, we had enough AIR MILES for a flight to Chicago. The best part? A Companion Flight to go with it! Lounge access and being able to use our miles to cover taxes and fees doesn't hurt either. What's not to like?

Redeem for a round-trip economy flight from Ottawa to Chicago starting at 1,150 reward miles.<sup>1</sup>

you can bring along a friend when you use the Companion Flight Benefit!<sup>2</sup>

Earn a Bonus of 1,450 AIR MILES® reward miles

when you charge a total of $3,000 in purchases to your Card within your first three months of Card membership<sup>3</sup> - enough for 2 select flights<sup>2*</sup> when used with the Companion Flight Benefit.<sup>3†</sup>

*Based on feedback from AIR MILES® Collectors and American Express® AIR MILES® Reserve Credit Card members. For full benefit details of the American Express® AIR MILES® Reserve Credit Card, please visit travelreserve.ca. <sup>1</sup>One round-trip economy flight ticket from Ottawa to Chicago during low season is 1,150 reward miles, and during high season is 1,400. <sup>2</sup>All Rewards offered are subject to the Terms and Conditions of the AIR MILES® Reward Program, are subject to change and may be withdrawn without notice. To redeem for Travel and/or Merchandise Rewards, you must have accumulated sufficient AIR MILES® reward miles in your Dream Balance. Some restrictions may apply. Quantities may be limited. Collectors must pay taxes, fuel surcharges and other applicable charges and fees on air, hotel and car rental Rewards. Travel Rewards may be subject to a minimum advance booking and availability from participating Suppliers. No cancellations, exchanges or refunds for tickets, certificates or merchandise once booked or ordered. For complete details, visit airmiles.ca. 1. Bonus - Subject to change without notice. Account must be in good standing. To qualify for the 1,450 bonus reward miles, you must have at least $3,000 in net purchases posted to your account within your first three months of Card membership. Please allow up to eight weeks from the date the bonus reward miles were earned for the bonus to be awarded to your Collector Account. This offer cannot be combined with any other offer. 2. Select Flight - A select flight is a return flight with origin and destination within the same province and having a departure date during the low season of Jan. 8 - Feb. 28; Apr. 1 - May 31; Sept. 16 - Dec. 15. Other flight options may be available, go to airmiles.ca/flightzones for more details. 3. Companion Flight Benefit - Once per year, based on the date your American Express AIR MILES Reserve Credit Card account was opened on our system, when a Basic Card member redeems up to a maximum of 1,450 AIR MILES reward miles for one round-trip flight in economy class within the AIR MILES Flight Program, they can receive a Companion Flight for the same itinerary, excluding service charges, taxes and fuel surcharges. Subject to availability. The Companion Flight benefit cannot be used in conjunction with the AIR MILES FlexFly Benefit. †Used by Amex Bank of Canada under license from American Express. ®Trademarks of AIR MILES International Trading B.V.
